Call for submissions on Insurance in Superannuation Working Group (ISWG) discussion paper

The Insurance in Superannuation Working Group (ISWG) today released the first of a series of discussion papers as a first step towards extending the Life Insurance Code of Practice to superannuation trustees.

The paper, Account balance erosion due to insurance premiums, examines how to address the issue of members paying for cover they don't need through having multiple super accounts. A further two discussion papers are due to be published in coming weeks.

The ISWG is identifying changes that can improve superannuation member value and protections. Work priorities include:

1. Reducing benefit erosion on superannuation account balances for members, including establishing the right level of automatic cover for young people and low income earners;
2. Reducing inappropriate multiple insurance policies;
3. Providing better and more timely assistance to members during claims;
4. Improving superannuation fund member communications on insurance;
5. Improving data standards to improve service to members; and,
6. Undertaking independent research on the costs and benefits of group insurance within superannuation.

ISWG Chairman Jim Minto said too many people have multiple superannuation accounts and while insurance benefits are valuable to members, there is more rapid erosion of retirement savings if a person has too many insurance benefits.

"Ideally people would consolidate their insurances and avoid this, but we must provide solutions now to address the reality of multiple, automatically provided life insurance arrangements," he said.

The ISWG is committed to improving consumer value and experience. The paper asks for submissions from stakeholders on the proposed solutions to balance superannuation contributions allocated to saving for retirement versus automatic insurance benefits.

Industry and stakeholder feedback will help shape an enforceable Code of Practice and Good Practice Guidance for Trustees, to be published by the ISWG later this year.

How to make a submission - Submissions should be sent to ISWG-PMO@kpmg.com.au no later than 7 April 2017.
